

ABSTRACT

The method for at-speed testing in a memory built-in-self-test (BIST) when the memory accesses happen at twice the clock frequency includes: generating addresses for read/write operations at twice the clock frequency; generating data for write operations at twice the clock frequency; and generating expected outputs for read operations at twice the clock frequency.

10